Dear Doctor:

I have just received notice of our meeting to be held in Philadelphia Friday February 2nd, at 509 Market St. This is the office of Ed. Gottlieb.

Due to the fact that the meeting is being called so late, I thought it would be nice if we could know at the meeting when the west was planning to meet again. I was expecting the east and west to have a joint meeting at the next session. You had said it would take place in Indianapolis, but since then there has been some discussion about whether or not this was the best place. No matter where it is to be held, if we are going to have a joint meeting I feel that we could discuss the details at our meeting and simplify matters. What do you think? If by any chance you folks have decided when and where you are having your next meeting could you let us know, so we could plan accordingly.

Maybe Tom has discussed the matter with you, and every thing is arranged. If so just forget this letter, if however nothing has been done, I would appreciate it if you would suggest what you think is the thing to do.

I am leaving here Thursday Feb. 1st, and would appreciate hearing from you before then if possible.

Hope you are feeling well.

Very Truly Yours

P.S. I think Chicago would be the best place to meet.
